

Diploma in Computer Graphic Design

The Diploma in Graphic Design is a programme that combines ideas, art, and technology to visually communicate information to the audience. This programme covers a wide range of topics, including typography and editorial design, packaging design, illustration, desktop publishing, photography, and advertising design.

This programme serves as a crucial stepping stone into the field of graphic design by engaging students with creative talent and guiding them to the next level through the development of strong technical skills in conceptual development and design processes.
